TWO BOYS DRAGGED BY RUNAWAY COW.

Carried Half a Mile at Heels of the Animal.

LADS WERE PLAYING COWBOY.

'Suckie" Ran to the Homestead Where She Was Captured-Lads Escaped With a Few Cuts and Bruises.

Johnnie and Eddie Sanbourne, 9 and 6 years old, were treated to a bit of realism vesterday while playing "cowboy," by the cow, which all but ended in the death of both lads. "Old Suckie," the family milch cow, was grazing on a lot between Madison and Granite City, Ill., and the boys were watching her. In the absence of a stake they held the rope. Late in the afternoon they tired of the novelty, and for pastime began to slay imaginary redskins. "Suckle" must have grown tired also, for when a street car passed she threw her head up and began to buck violently. The animal's friskiness so agitated the lads that they slipped the rope over their bodies in order

But the animal was thoroughly aroused. Instead of calming down at the boys shouts, she reared the more violently and finally dashed toward home in a run. When the rope was jerked taut it formed a noose around Johnnie and Eddie. They were hurled from their feet, with Eddle under-neath, and then dragged away over the green sward, a cloud of dust marking the route the cow took across the prairie, with the boys dragging at her heels.

The mother of the boys was the first to see the cow approaching the homestead with the human weight at its hoofs. She screamed for help. Her cries drew the at-tention of neighbors to the perilous adventure, and a general rush was made to head off the animal.

"Suckie," however, cluded them all, and after passing the crowd of excited men and women made a final sprint to the yard where she was kept. Here she halted, while the pursuing party came up. The boys were released immediately, but were too numb to be able to stand up. Johnnie's bruises were found to be painful, but not serious. Eddle was not only bruised, but his face and head were gashed and lacerated as well. The parents were so overloyed at finding them slive that they looked upon their cuts and bruises as mere trifles in comparison with what might have been the result of the Canadian Boundary Line. Seattle, Wash, Aug. 5. - O. H. Titman, United States Commissioner in the matter of international boundary between Alaska and Canada, has arrived from the North. He and F. W. King, the British Commissioner, have been setting monuments in ac sioner, have been settling monuments in ac-cordance with the agreement reached in the modus vivendi. Titman states that Glacier, Boulder, Boulder Rock and other creeks which the miners claim constituted a portion of the Porcupine district, are now in British territory. He said: "Porcupine River and all of its affluents are defined by modus vivendi. Glacier and Boulder Rock creeks are on the Canadian side, and will be so long as the modus viside, and will be so long as the modus vi-vendi line is recognized. vendi line is recognized.

"It is difficult to tell what constitutes the Porcupine district. The miners think it includes a great many creeks and rivers not tributary to the Porcupine. I understand they claim Glacier, Boulder Rock and other streams are included in the so-called Porcupine section. If that is a fact, then much of the Porcupine camp lies on the British side. Certainly Glacier and Boulder Rock do, Glacier runs north and south and practically parallel with Porcupine. No matter where the line runs, all claims staked in the disputed Porcupine territory prior to the time the modus vivendi took effect. October 29, 1859, will remain intact in accordance with the terms of the modus vivendi."

ance with the terms of the modus vivendi. Quarantine Against Tampa. Charleston, S. C., Aug. 5.—The Charleston Board of Health notified the railroads en-tering the city to-day that because of yel-low fever at Tampa they will be required to decline to bring passengers or baggage from that place here,

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND IN A SHED.

Mystery Surrounding the Disappearance of Mrs. Minnie Strathman Explained.

Corpse Was Discovered by William Kinsella on the Unoccupied Premises at 1413 Chouteau Avenue.

The body of Mrs. Minnie Strathman of No. 1134 Talmage avenue, who mysteriously disappeared while on her way to market on May 9 last, was discovered yesterday morning in an outhouse at No. 1413 Chouteau avenue. There were no marks of violence came suddenly from some natural cause.

She was 50 years old. Nearly three months ago Mrs. Strathman left her home to go to market, carrying a large basket on her arm. Her family consisted of a husband, William Strathman, and two daughters, Lulu and Mamie, and when she did not appear at the usual time they became alarmed and notified the po-

MRS. MINNIE STRATHMANN. Who disappeared on May 9, and whose body was found in a shed at No. 1413 Chouteau avenue.

Mrs. Strathman was well acquainted with the streets and car lines of the city, so there was no dread of her being lost, but instead it was feared that some serious accident had happened to her. All the relatives of the family were notified and the husband offered a reward of $25 for any in-formation of the whereabouts of his wife. No trace of Mrs. Strathman was discovered, however, and she was finally given up as dead, it being supposed that she was the victim of some accident, such as drown-Last Tuesday Mrs. Nellie Donohue of St.

at No. 1413 Chouteau avenue and decided William Kinsella, to the place yesterday to look over the premises. When Kinsella entered the place he was startled to find the body of a woman stretched on the floor of the house in an advanced state of decomposition. The police were notified and the body was taken to the morgue. Superintendent Ambruster at the morgue recalled the description of a woman who had dis-appeared some time before and looked the matter up in the records. The points of dress, hair and weight tallied exactly with that of the missing woman of May 9, and the crowning point of identification was the basket which was found alongside of her and which was identically the same pattern as the one which Mrs. Strathman carried when she had left her home. Convinced that the body was that of the missing woman he notified her family and the body will be taken charge of by them.

A curious feature about the case is that the body should have escaped observation for so long. Apparently no one noticed Mrs. Strathman when she entered the house, and Strathman when she entered the house, and exactly how she wandered out to Four-teenth and Chouteau avenue is uncertain, unless she had been visiting in that district. The shed in which she was found is a continuation of one alongside, belonging to the house next door, and it is also singular that the odor of the body while decomposing was not noticed, although it is presumed that the door being closed had something to do with it.

LANDLADY USED AN AX.

Patrick Dunlevy and Mrs. Flynn Make Counter Charges.

Because she thought that Patrick Dunlevy, her boarder, has not paid the full amount of money due her, Mrs. Bridget Flynn of No. 214 Madison street undertook to retaliate with an ax. She wielded the weapon with effect, and Dunlevy received enough scalp wounds to keep Doctor Specht of the North End Dispensury busy for some time sewing them up. Finally both Dunlevy and Mrs. Flynn were landed behind the bars at the Flith District Station, charged with disturbance of the peace. Dunlevy came home from his work Saturday night and paid Mrs. Flynn $1.19, which he said was all he got for his week's work. Later he went out and came back under the influence of liquor. Mrs. Flynn about 19 o'clock yesterday morning began to reproach him for having told her he had no money when he had enough to get liquor.

A quarrel resulted, in which Mrs. Flynn Flynn of No. 214 Madison street undertook liquor.

A quarrel resulted, in which Mrs, Flynn alleges that Dunlevy hit her on the head with his fist. Subsequently Mrs, Flynn retreated to the rear of her home and procured an ax. She assulted Dunlevy, and he knew no more till he came to consciousness under the treatment of Doctor Specht.

SIMPSON FAMILY'S LONG JOURNEY AFOOT

Walked All the Way From Moberly in Search of a Livelihood.

WAS MISSING SINCE MAY 9. TWENTY-SEVEN MILES A DAY.

Wife Refused to Accept Comforts in Which Her Husband Could Not Share—Help Given Them by Police.

John Simpson, a coal miner, whose home is in Macon City, Mo., arrived in St. Louis yesterday morning with his wife, having walked here from Moberly, Mo., carrying their 6-weeks-old baby and a bundle of clothing When they landed in the city on the body and it is presumed that death they were almost penniless, footsore and worn by the long journey on foot.

A stranger, to whom they applied for help, directed them to the Four Courts. It was about noon when they reached the building. Simpson had only 5 cents in his pocket. He spent that for milk for the baby, which seemed to be even more worn from the journey than the parents.

At first they halted at the door of the police station on seeing the stern-looking officers. After a moment they plucked up courage and entered. As many as are the tales of woe poured into the policemen's ears, their hearts were

Into the policemen's ears, their hearts were touched by the story of the Simpson fam-ily. Simpson said he had been unable to get work at home and had gone to Mober-ly. There he spent all he had looking for employment. It was either starve or get out. He advised his wife to take the baby and return to her parents' home until he could send for her. There seemed to be a demand for laborers in St. Louis and he told her he would walk here.
"I will not leave you, John," she said. "If you can walk to St. Louis I can do it, too."

Although St. Louis is over 135 miles from Moberly, they started forth on Tuesday morning to walk it—she carrying the baby in her arms, he their bundle of belongings. At night they stopped in a farmhouse to rest. As soon as the sun arose again they would resume their journey. In five days they covered the distance, having walked at they covered the distance, having walked at the rate of twenty-seven miles a day.

Lieutenant Johnson, who listened intently to their story, was much impressed. He suggested that Mrs. Simpson and the baby go to the Police Matron's room, where they would be taken care of until the husband found work. Again she protested that she wished to be with her husband in adversity as well as in prosperity. At this the Lieutenant was so touched that he passed around his hat in the office, asking the men to contribute. Two dollars and sixty cents was raised and the family went away rejoicing.

Lieutenant Johnson advised them to get a room on Second street, where they could live cheaply until Simpson could get a posi-tion.
